To whom it may concern,

The following letter attests to the fact that Mr. Devan Nambiar has been active as a guest lecturer in the 2nd year medical students' Mechanisms, Manifestations and Management and Disease (MMMD) course for the past 5 years. This MMMD course is designed to provide students with a clinically relevant series of didactic lectures just before they begin working with live patients in a hospital setting as 3rd year students. The MMMD course is quite comprehensive and covers virtually all areas of medicine.

I have functioned as the gynecology week manager since 2010, where my job is to find applicable topics to be covered during this week, and finding appropriate lecturers with sufficient expertise in given topics.

As stated earlier, Mr. Nambiar has provided the lecture focusing on Providing Culturally and Clinically Competent Care to Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Transgender Patients (LGBTQ) annually since December 2010. While a challenging subject to teach, Mr. Nambiar is one of the sole individuals with sufficient expertise in this area. His lecture continues to be highly rated by the students each year, and I foresee this lecture included within the Gynecology week for many future years to come.

Sincerely,

Dr. Matthew Morton
